++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A bright and sunny day for most.

Today:
All areas will have a dry day with plenty of sunshine. Mist and low cloud in parts of the east at first, gradually dispersing and perhaps the Western Isles seeing more cloud than most. Light winds. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
A clear and very cold start to the night with light winds. More in the way of cloud developing on east coasts on Wednesday morning. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Wednesday:
Dry and bright weather with light winds continuing on Wednesday, some cloud developing for Caithness and Sutherland later in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
A little rain is likely Thursday morning with stronger northerly winds for a time. Dry and bright again on Friday but feeling chilly before clouding over with rain on Saturday.
